COURSE INTRODUCTION

The Political Science programme is designed for students pursuing graduation and post-graduation in regular mode under the semester system. The programme aims to cultivate political thinking and enhance students' decision-making abilities. It seeks to develop an analytical perspective on political behaviour and processes, nurturing students into socially responsible and ethically conscious citizens.

The undergraduate programme spans three years, comprising 16 core courses across six semesters. In addition, students will choose one Skill Enhancement Course in each of the first six semesters.

The fourth year, leading to a Bachelor of Political Science with Research, will include 14 courses across two semesters. In the fifth year, students enrolled in the Master's in Political Science programme will undertake 14 advanced courses distributed over two semesters. From the seventh semester onward, students will engage in a research project each semester, fostering a strong research culture and critical inquiry.

Programme Outcomes (POs):

PO 1	Aligned with the ethos of Kumaun University—which is committed to nation-building and nurturing leadership through education—this programme fosters ethical values through the practical, moral, and intellectual dimensions of learning. It promotes an understanding and appreciation of human diversity and encourages active participation in community life as responsible citizens. The programme enhances knowledge and cultivates a research aptitude regarding political phenomena, ranging from local to global contexts. Its main objectives are as follows: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>To acquaint students with contemporary political theory and key issues in the Indian political system.</li> <li>To develop critical insights into alternative moral and ethical frameworks for interpreting modern political discourse.</li> <li>To encourage the application of disciplinary and interdisciplinary learning across diverse contexts by integrating knowledge and practical experiences.</li> <li>To create a stimulating and supportive learning environment that promotes high-quality research and related academic activities, including debates, seminars, and lectures.</li> <li>To equip students with essential skills for effective work in areas such as teacher education, teaching methodologies, educational administration, and supervision.</li> <li>To raise awareness about career opportunities in both the public and private sectors for postgraduates in Political Science, while also highlighting the subject's relevance for careers in politics, civil services, teaching, legal education, and various other fields.</li> </ul>

Course: DSE1	Course Title: Modern Political Thought: Dominant Trajectories
Course Outcomes: The Modern Political Thought: Dominant Trajectories course explores key political ideologies and thinkers that have influenced political theory from the classical to the modern era. It covers foundational ideologies like Marxism, Liberalism and Conservatism and examines thinkers such as Karl Popper, Hannah Arendt and Leo Strauss in the context of Cold War liberalism. The course also discusses the rise of liberal thought through L.T. Hobhouse, Isaiah Berlin and F.A. Hayek focusing on individual rights and freedom. John Rawls' Theory of Justice and its critiques along with Critical Theory from thinkers like Robert Nozick and Herbert Marcuse are also explored. This course enables students to critically engage with the evolution of political ideologies and their impact on modern political systems.
